Abstract

This paper analyzes the DSN MUI fatwa associated with al-Qardh. The paper also analyzes the hybrid contract law as the basis of the fatwas issued by DSN by combining al-Qardh and other contracts. This paper was based on qualitative research using a literature review to analyze multiple contracts that are needed and indications of hilah. The results show that the majority of scholars allow hybrid contracts in Islamic banking. But some scholars underline the hybrid contract aims to legalize usury, it is strictly forbidden. To issue a fatwa there needs to be a moderate manhaj in using syariah texts and maqashid shariah.

Introduction

Islamic economy is growing rapidly with increasing public interest to have account in Islamic bank. Generally, they are attracted by the campaign of no usury and profit loss sharing. With this growth certainly raises several problems, that cause an impasse for experts to find a solution. Islamic banking requires a contract to be legally and accepted by sharia law, both classic contracts that existed since the time of the prophet and the new contract of innovation from Islamic jurists who concentrated in Islamic banking. With such a rapid development, the practitioners are expected to be able to make product innovation, while the regulator performs product supervision conducted by practitioners. Here again, the DSN must be active towards the development of product innovation by issuing fatwas as a guide, academics certainly required to conduct research to provide enlightenment and escort transactions that do not deviate from the principles of sharia. (Agustianto, 2014)

MUI (Majelis Ulama Indonesia) as a factory produce fatwas to become a guideline for Indonesian society. Through the DSN (National Sharia Council), MUI publishes fatwas related with Islamic banking. The National Sharia Council was formed in 1997 and was the result of the workshop's recommendation of Sharia Mutual Workshop in the same year. (Antonio M. S., 2001, p. 32) DSN have issued 109 of the fatwa, one of them is the fatwa NO: 19 / DSN-MUI / IV / 2001 about al-Qardh. Although the fatwa of al-Qardh is considered an 'old school' fatwa and we seem to have tried to analyze the fatwa theoretically and contextually in relation to its methodology, content, application, and benefits to the audience.

At the beginning of Fatwa’s fatwa no. 19 / DSN-MUI / IV / 2001, the DSN provides a brief overview of the factors under which the al-Qardh fatwa is issued using a points that the Sharia Financial Institution (LKS) as well as a commercial institution must be able to act as a social institution that can maximize the economy. Fund of al-Qardh can be sourced from:1- Part of LKS capital;2- Profits of LKS set aside; and 3- Other institutions or individuals who entrust their infaq distribution to LKS. (Fatwa No.19/DSN-MUI/IV/2001) Regarding the source of funds, DSN re-clarifies the classification of social funds and customer funds used in accounts payable in the fatwa No: 79 / DSN-MUI / III / 2011 on Qardh by Using Customer Funds.Terms of Fund Distribution Qardh with Customer Fund, 1- al-Qardh in the LKS consists of two kinds: A-Qardh stand alone for the sole social purpose referred to in the DSN fatwa on al-Qardh, not as completeness for other transactions in products for the purpose of obtaining profit; 2- Akad Qardh is performed as completeness for other transactions using mu‘awadah contracts (exchange and can be commercial) in products intended to benefit. (Fatwa No:79/DSN-MUI/III/2011)

The following is al-Qardh contract that serves as a complement to other contracts in the DSN-MUI fatwa, on Qardh using customer funds:

- Rahn Gold; this contract is using three combination contract, rahn, qardh, and, ijarah.
- Financing of Islamic Haj Financial Institution Arrangement; this contract used qardh dan ijarah
- Debt Redirects; there are four alternative combination, qardh and murabahah, qardh and ijarah, qardh and ijarah munatihya bi tamlik.
- Sharia Charge Card; consist of three contracts, kafalah, qardh, and ijarah
- Sharia Card; consist of three contracts, kafalah, qardh, and ijarah
- Factoring of Sharia Accounts.

Transactions consists of 2 contracts or more in fiqh treasures are called hybrid contract. The scholars differ on the legal matters of hybrid contract. Although the majority of scholars allow multiple contracts, the prophet forbade transactions consisting of ba‘i and salaf.. (Al-Baihaqi, 1989) Islamic financial institutions prefer to qardh as complementary to other contracts than al-Qardh as an independent contract. Since al-Qardh is a social contract without multi-covenants it will not bring significant profit. From here we need to discuss the essence of al-Qardh, Multi Akad, and the combination of social and commercial contracts in the DSN MUI fatwa.

Research Method

This research type is qualitative research which produces descriptive data. In this study, the author use the juridical approach, the data obtained are arranged in detail systematic, logical, juridical which is then used to study regarding the taking of law in the DSN-MUI fatwa on guidelines general application of sharia principles. (Zulqarnain, 2012) a literature review conducted on hybrid contract’ book as the primary sources and other writings related with fiqh, qardh and fatwa as secondary sources. The collected data will be analyzed using descriptive method qualitative with a juridical approach that is data obtained selected according to quality and correctness then analyzed with appropriate articles of law to obtain the conclusions of the results of the research are further presented descriptively and qualitatively analyzed.

Results and Discussion

Al-Uqud (contracts) distinguished in various kinds seen from several points of view. There are two contracts, uqud tijarah or mu‘awadah and uqud tabarru’. uqud tijarah is a contract which aims to gain profit in a business transaction (profit oriented). For example, contract based on the principle of sale and purchase (murabahah, salam and istishna ’), a contract based on the principle of profit and loss sharing (mudharabah and musyararakah), a contract based on the principle of lease (ijarah and ijarah muntahia brittamilik). Uqud tabarru’ is a type of contract related to non-profit transactions and aims to help others. Like a qardh, rahn, hawalah, wakalah, kafalah, wadiah etc. (Zarqa, 2004) (Ghazaly, 2010)

Al-Qardh is part of tabarru’ contract. Loan or known as Al Qardh is divided into two, the first, Al-Qardh is lending something to others with the obligation to return the principal to the person who lends. Second, Qardh al-Hasan, that is lending something with no obligation to return. (Anshori, 2006) This is to help other people who are in need of money. A person who gives qard al-hasan to others can get a reward from Allah. (Abdul Jalil dan Rahman, 2010) Qard al hasan is an unique product of Islamic Banking, which is a zero profit. (Asiyah, 2013)

Al-qardh used by IDB when providing soft loans to the government. The cost of these services is generally not more than 2.5 percent and has been around 1-2 percent. In its application in sharia banking, qardh is commonly used to provide bailout funds to prime customers and to contribute to the small business or micro sectors, as well as to support the social sector. (Ascaraya, 2011) The application of al-Qardh is applied in several ways: first, to finance people who need immediate bailouts with short time. Secondly, financing products to contribute very little or assist the social sector that is usually used al-Qardh al-Hasan's contract.. (Antonio M. S., 2001) Furthermore, Wahbah Zuhaily's noted distinguishes between dain and qardh, dain is more common than qardh, its included material and non-material (abandon a prayer or fasting, it is called dain). While al-Qardh is more specialized in financial terms. (Zuhaily, al-Muamalah al-Maliyah al-Muashirah, 2002)

Hybrid contract in the fiqh treasure are known as al-uqud murakkabah, al-uqud is a plural 'from aqdad which means bond (Faris, 1411 H), whereas murakkabah means level. Akad in terms of a meaningful relationship between two parties. Tarkib means jam'u (assembled) associations of several things into one unity (al-Imrani A. M., 2006) There are many names of hybrid contracts in fiqh, First, uqud al-Mutaqabilah in the classical fiqh is called with isytirat aqd bi al-aqq. Second, Al-'Uqud al-Mujtamiah (accrued contract). Al-'Uqud al-Mujtamiah is a multi-cadre collected in one transaction, two aqad and more who gather in one contract. third, Al-'Uqud al-Mutanaqiqah, al-Muta'addidah wa al-Mutanafiyah (opposite contract). Fourth, Al-'Uqud al-Mukhtalifah (different contract). Mukhtalifah multi-agreement is defined as the collation of two or more contracts which have differences in legal consequences between the two contracts or part of it. Fifth, Al-uqud al-Mutajanisah (al-Imrani A. M., 2006)

The fiqh scholars, both contemporary and classical, differ on the legal status of hybrid contract between the forbid and justify. Scholars from Syafi'iyyah, hanabilah, majority of scholars Hanafiyyah and some scholars of Malikiyyah view that hybrid contract is allowed. The basis of their thinking departs from that the original law in muamalah is permitted as long as there is no proposition that forbid it or cancel it. Then, scholars from Dhahiriyah noted that the original of contract is forbidden (al-Imrani A. M., 2006) According to Ibn Taymiyyah and Ibn al-Qayyim argue that the original law of the contract is allowed, except that canceled or prohibited by syara’. (Taimiyah, 1985). Al-Aslhu fi muamalah ashihah (the original of the transaction is allowed) in mauzah qawaid al-fiqhiyyah which is texted by (Ramadhan, 2007) and al-Aslhu fi al-Muwadhat al-Ibah (the original of the profit transaction is permitted) (Ramadhan, 2007). Although multiple contracts are permitted, al-Imrani (al-Imrani A. M., 2006) added that there are limitations that must be understood and obeyed in order not to fall into the contracts or practices that are forbidden.

There are several factors that cause the emergence of hybrid contract practices, among others:

- Promotion and marketing of products, through a tying arrangement system in which unloved or unused products are sold because of their association with other products that are preferred or even required by the buyer.
- Administrative hilah, with hybrid contract business man intend to avoid from pay a certain guarantee, double tax, compensation, and forth.
- Creating a legal solution (makhray syari'i to avoid a forbidden transaction.
- Hilah and avoid prohibited transaction that this hilah can justify certain transactions become permitted and halal. Like the practice of buying and selling manipulations that clearly contain usury or the element of obscurity
- Minimize the risk

Alaudin Za'tary stated that hybrid contract are legitimate, although the contract consists of a combination of commercial and social commitments. Za’ tary added except qardh contract is permitted, the combination between al-Qardh and others caused riba. (Ala’Uddin Za’tary, 2010) All contracts containing sale are forbidden to be combined with al-Qardh in one transaction, such as ijarah with al-qardh, greetings with al-qardh, sharf with al-qardh. But it is not forever prohibited as long as it does not profit from one with the existence of certain conditions at the beginning. (al-Imrani A. M., 2006)

Ibn Qayyim states that the Prophet Mohammed forbade multi-covenants consisting of sale and loan (qardh), although the two contracts stand alone. This is to avoid the usury, suppose someone to give debt to another 1000 dirhams, then the person sells goods worth 800 dirhams for 1000 dirhams, then he will get an additional 200 dirhams. Wahbah Zuhaily (1985) noted that the difference between Qardh and Ba’i that qardh aims to preserve the human good and facilitate them by lending, it should not be when qardh aims to benefit others. The scholars prohibit the qardh contract that jarra manfaah (whithdraw profits), because qardh is aqd iftaq which bring benefit to the given debt, if there requirements the upcoming profit for the debt-feeding this thing has been out of context. Nevertheless, Rasulallah advised to pay with the best payment. Inna khairakum ahsanukum qadha’an.

It can be concluded that hybrid contract that contains the sale element is prohibited when combined with qardh in one transaction, such as ijarah with qardh contract, salam contract with qardh contract. (Mihajat, 2015) There are three hadith prophets which denote the prohibition of the hybrid contract scheme, the first prohibition of combining ba’i and salaf, the two bai'at al qamari prohibitions, the third ban on shafqat al fi shafqat al. (Al-Baihaqi, 1989) In the other hand, Alaudin za'tary (‘Ala’Uddin Za'tary, 2010) allows to collect many covenants in a contract, whether the contract is the same law or different law (type). As long as it has been fulfilled all the requirements and conditions. The contract contains two things:

- Sharia does not prohibit the merger of the two contracts
- The merger of the contracts is not an intermediary of usury.

Nazih Hamad stated that as long as the contract stand alone is permissible, there is no proposition prohibiting the existence of the contract, when the contract is combined with another contract then it is considered valid. (Hammad, 2005) Al Imrani discusses the ijarah and qardh covenants that are gathered, the status like ba’i and qardh which is forbidden (haram). In accordance with the hadith of the Prophet that the gathering of tabarru contract and mua’awadah is not allowed. The most dominant reason is dzariyah not fall into usury. (al-Imrani A. M., 2006) Nevertheless, agustianto underlines the dominant reason of the prohibition of the combination between the tabarru contract and the m’awadah is usury, the hybrid contract which does not lead to usury is still permissible (Agustianto, 2014) In the work of al-Imrani. (2006) and Nazih Hammad (2005) added that not only being careful of the prohibited hilal and anticipation of usury, hybrid contract can also be a makhraj al-syar‘i, where hybrid contract can be a solution to the deadlock of contract innovation.

From the above description of hybrid contract can be grouped into two, namely: hybrid contract allowed and forbidden. Hybrid contract contract that is prohibited when in it contains hilah to avoid from things that are forbidden. Legal implications hybrid contract also not necessarily the same legal status one by one of the contract build it. However, banks are commercial institutions that need tijarah contract to still exist. Other than that,From the point of risk that must be faced by LKS, using the principle of Al-Qardh LKS will face a big enough risk that the possibility of uncollected funds used by customers. On the one hand the risks to be faced are quite large, but on the other hand LKS can not get income. This fact is very inconsistent with the concept of risk and return that many believed economic actors. This concept states that the higher the risk faced then the results to be gained also greater. This problem will indirectly encourage LKS to dodge in such a way, in order to earn revenue to cover such a big risk. (Widyarin, 2011), the sharia bank is more inclined to use the qardh contract as a complement to independent al-Qardh as social contract. The LKS need legitimate from the fatwa to do it and DSN have issued fatwa about al-Qardh as complement to other contract.

Meanwhile Muhammad Maksam considers that the DSN MUI fatwas are loose. On the one hand it allows the opportunity to enlarge the number of Islamic financial products, but on the other hand tend to be predominantly put forward the aspect of legality rather than morality. Maksam saw that it was done by DSN-MUI in three ways: to legalize some form of combination of contracts (hybrid contract), to validate the model of income revenues in the usage of usury, and to enforce the addition of conditions disputed by fiqh scholars. (Muhdzar, 2014) Oni Syahrini in (Mudzhar, 2014) noted the method in ijtihad, there are madrasah al-mutaattilah li an-nusus (ignoring texts) with the emphasis of maslahah, Madrasah zahiriyyah (literalis) rigid hold text 3. Madhab al-wasatiyyah (moderate or middle way) that consider nash with maqashid shari‘ah.

Furthermore, al-Qahtani added there are three methods of ulama in the fatwa, first, radhyiq wa tasdid, this group is fanatic towards madhab and certain scholars, second, tasahul and taisir, third, manhaj al-wustha. (al-Qahtani, 2000) Ma'ruf amin states that if the fatwa is only stipulated based on needs (alhajah) or (maslahah), or maqashid shariah without using nusush syar‘iyyah then it is too far (ifrati). Demikan vice versa when deciding fatwa based on nusush syar‘iyyah text without involving maslahah and maqashid syar‘iyyah then fatwa will seem stiff and possibly will many new problems which can not be answered by fatwa. (Mudzhar, 2014) DSN used the middle way in fatwa, so there are many innovation of contracts and transactions in Indonesia Islamic banking.

Conclusion

This study shows that in contracts there are social and commercial, both of which show that fiqh muamalah not merely discuss the benefits but also discuss the principle of help please. Al-Qardh is essentially a social contract as a human bridge to help each other.
Hybrid Contract is allowed by the scholars with the condition does not become an intermediary of usury, or deceive for the occurrence of usury (hilah). Even hybrid contract which consists of a combination of social and commercial contracts is permitted as long as not lead to usury.

DSN MUI in issuing fatwas associated with al-Qardh as a complement to other contracts using a moderate manhaj, which is balancing between syariat texts, banking needs, and maqashid shariah itself. Because in muamalah muamalah issue provides a lot of room for innovation. Sharia banks as perpetrators who must obey the fatwa signs are commercial institutions, meaning that banks also do not want to lose by continuing to run transactions that are social. Nevertheless, Islamic banks do not have to abandon at all social transactions to help the community.
